Pupils captivated by top storyteller

CAPTIVATED children from a school in Windsor were taken to other worlds on Tuesday when a popular children's storyteller paid them a visit.

Pupils from years one to eight at Brigidine School, in Queensmead Kings Road, listened intently as John Harris told them imaginative tales throughout the day.

The popular author thrilled youngsters with his stories of pirates chasing everlasting sail grinders and Greek legends with a modern twist. John is the author of four children's books including Charlie's Key, Creature of Crete, The Great and The Pearl in the Grass, and has told stories on BBC radio stations.

He added: "I visit over 100 schools a year and wish they were all as happy as this school."

"The kids have been attentive, appreciative and great to tell stories to."
